CONTROVERSY OVER FRANCO IS MOUNTING

Issue Is Expected To Reach The Floor of United Nations Council Next Week

EXILE MAKES CHARGES

New York, April 12.—(P)—The mounting controversy over the Franco government in Spain, which is expected to reach the floor of the United Nations Security Council next week, was swelled today by an exiled Spanish Republican leader's assertion that Generalissimo Franco has 450,000 troops massed menacingly on the French frontier.

Dr. Fernando De Los Rios, former dean of the University of Madrid, one-time ambassador to Spain and pre-war cabinet member, told a press conference last night he had documentary proof of the existence in Spain of "an aggressive spirit and an aggressive plan against France."

"Spain now has an army superior to that of France numerically, and perhaps in the quality of armament, too," said De Los Rios, who arrived here from Paris Wednesday as the exiled Republican regime's observer at the Security Council sessions.

He expressed hope the document to which he referred—supposedly found in Spain by Republican agents—would be presented to the council when it takes up Poland's charges that Spain is a threat to world peace and that Franco is harboring German scientists experimenting on new atomic weapons.

De Los Rios made his accusations against the Franco regime only a few hours after President Truman had told a press conference in Washington that the Polish charges were political. The president did not elaborate.

The Polish indictment was placed on the council's provisional agenda last night for consideration next week immediately after Russia's demand for dismissal of the Iranian case is disposed.

A full hearing on the Spanish issue is assured and at least four members are expected to press for some means of cracking down on Franco. They are Mexico, Poland, the only council members recognizing the (Turn to Page Five)

WELL KNOWN IN ERIE

Erie, April 12.—(P)—Navy Captain Denis Knoll, member of the U. N. Military staff committee and now in New York working on plans for a world police force, is a son of Mrs. Edmund Knoll of Erie. One of the last to leave Corregidor, where he was aerologist with the Asiatic fleet, Capt. Knoll was missing several months before he turned up in a submarine at an Australian port. Later he assisted the U. S. embassy at Moscow.

Political Rift In China Is Widening

Kaiyuan, Manchuria, April 12.—China's political rift widened perceptibly today in this Communist surrounded, machine-gun-protected city as Gen. Liang Hwa-Sheng told correspondents he would "sweep away" the Communists in a "drive to northern Manchuria."

The arrival Tuesday of a cease fire team of American, Communist and government members served only to worsen the situation. Liang told a press conference he had received no instructions regarding the cease fire team and declined to discuss its mission. He is deputy commander of government forces in northeast China.

Expressing fear for the safety of Communist cease fire team members, government military authorities ordered them confined to their quarters. The Reds were told they could not go on the streets without bodyguards of government soldiers.

John U. Schroyer Sets Up Campaign Committee Here

John U. Schroyer "fired" from the cabinet of Gov. Edward Martin because he would not give up his aspirations to be governor of the Commonwealth spent some time in Warren yesterday. He was accompanied by his son, George Schroyer, who has just returned from Germany where he worked himself up from a private to a Captain in the U. S. Army.

While in the city Mr. Schroyer arranged for a committee here to handle his candidacy. He did not say who had been elected as his chairman here but he did say that labor interests would be represented on the committee that he had selected and that their names would be announced from his Harrisburg headquarters.

Queried relative to what plans he had arranged for Route 6 while Secretary of Highway he said "I had laid out a comprehensive program for Route 6 which contemplated the spending of $14,000,000 on the route. I realized that Route 3 is one of the older routes and needed rebuilding in many sections. I drove over it and I know just in what shape it is. One contract for the construction of the section from the Glade bridge into Clarendon was on my program for

War President's Words Live for Postwar America

Flanking the picture of Jo Davidson's famous bust of Franklin D. Roosevelt are quotations from the late president's public utterances—words which show his confidence in the American way and his foresight into the problems of the postwar world.

MacArthur Given 12 Votes For Jap Diet

Tokyo, April 12.—(P)—In complete returns today from scattered Tokyo precincts in Japan's general election gave General MacArthur a lead over President Truman for a seat in the diet.

MacArthur received 12 votes; Truman one.

Both were edged out by hunger. Thirteen ballots were marked "more food!"

Push Drive For Control of Atom Energy

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

Washington, April 12.—(P)—Congress drove today to lay down a law for the domestic control of atomic energy by the first anniversary of its use as a military weapon—August 6.

Chairman McMahon (D-Conn.) of the special senate committee which unanimously approved a final draft of control legislation yesterday told reporters he "most certainly would expect" it to be in the statute books by the anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima.

As drawn by McMahon's committee, the projected control commission would have broader powers than any ever held by a government agency in peacetime.

On the question of speedy action, however, the committee's bill must wait in line for senate consideration behind such measures as extension of price control and approval of the British loan. But it has been promised a spot on the floor as soon as possible.

ASKS OPA LIQUIDATION

Erie, April 12.—(P)—A prediction that the OPA "eventually will prove a bigger failure than prohibition" was voiced by Robert R. Watson, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in an address before the Erie Manufacturers Association yesterday. He recommended the OPA "liquidate itself" declaring "if it doesn't, the black market situation will grow worse."

Split Over Extension Of Draft Heralds a Hot Fight

Washington, April 12.—(P)—A three-way split over whether the draft should be extended, suspended or allowed to die May 15 heralded a hot fight as the house took up the issue today.

Anticipating long and bitter debate, Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) called the members to meet at 10 a. m. and said he planned another "breakfast session" tomorrow in the hope of a final vote by nightfall.

The house plans to take an Easter recess late next week, and members want to toss the draft fight over to the senate before going home.

The starting point for what is expected to be one of the merriest congressional moles in years, the bill as written by the house military committee after a long controversy was:

1. Extend until next February 15 the wartime draft law which will expire on May 15 unless congress revises it.
2. Limit to 18 months the period of training and service of any inducted man, including those already in uniform.
3. Prohibit the induction of fathers and give local draft boards final say over which farm workers shall be deferred.

4. Put these ceilings on the size of the armed forces by July 1, 1947: Army, 1,070,000; Navy, 558,000; Marine Corps, 108,000.
5. Ban the induction in any month of more men than are necessary to meet the July 1, 1947, quotas, which were fixed by the armed forces themselves. In making calls on Selective Service each month, the services would be required to take into account voluntary enlistments during the preceding month.
6. Fix the draft ages at 18 to 29, inclusive, instead of the present 18 through 44.

The biggest fight is expected over several plans to extend the draft but to suspend inductions while "removals" drive is put on. There is strong support for pay raise amendments, although the committee recommended that these be kept out of the draft bill.

Atomic Bomb Tests Vital Truman Says

Washington, April 12.—(P)—President Truman, who once postponed atomic bomb tests in the Pacific, said today these tests are of vital importance and he had been assured the new target dates would be met.

He issued a formal statement on the subject, but without any explanation of why he selected this particular time to give his views. However, Senator Huffman (D-Ohio) recently introduced a resolution calling for cancellation of tests.

Mr. Truman said the experiments at Bikini atoll should provide information "essential to intelligent planning in the future and an evaluation of the effect of atomic energy on our defense establishments."

The first of two tests of the bomb against warships was set originally for May 15. Mr. Truman postponed it for about six weeks, saying that many congressmen wanted to witness the trials but would be unable to do so at this time.

FIRE DAMAGES TOWBOAT

Pittsburgh, April 12.—(P)—Fire did about $5,000 damage to the 20-year-old towboat "Pittsburgh" yesterday in the Allegheny river. The boat had been tied up for repairs at the Zube Towing & Dredging Company's landing on the northside. Thousands lined river banks and bridges to watch the fire burn furiously for a half hour.

Most Hunted Criminal Is In Custody

Knoxville, Tenn., April 12.—(P)—The nation's most hunted criminal—rape-killer Earl McFarland—was back behind bars today, awaiting removal to Washington and eventual death in the electric chair.

The 24-year-old ex-marine, who was captured here yesterday, on a street corner a block from city jail by two FBI agents, said "my goose is cooked and I'm ready to go," and added that he would not fight extradition to Washington.

FBI Agent Norman H. McCabe said McFarland, who escaped from the District of Columbia jail April 3 in company with another condemned killer, Joseph D. Medley, was being held in Knoxville jail under $100,000 bond pending a removal hearing tomorrow at 11 a. m.

McCabe said two agents in an automobile saw McFarland standing on a street corner "like he was waiting for a car," and added that "they stopped immediately and took him into custody."

The two-headed youth, who steadfastly denied his guilt in an interview with reporters, asserted he came to Knoxville Friday—"hitch-hiking and hobnobbing."

He said he had spent the last five nights of his short-lived freedom living in the open "just like we used to do on Guadalcanal when I was with the First Marine Division."

He had returned to his native Tennessee seeking help from friends and relatives, he continued. (Turn to Page Thirteen)

Two Billion Hike In Living Is Predicted

Washington, April 12.—(P)—Congress, told by OPA that Americans face a $2,000,000,000 cost of living jump, heard a demand from one of its own committees today that meat prices be boosted $750,000,000 a year.

Price Administrator Paul Porter voiced the living cost prediction in protesting amendments tacked on to the pending bill to grant OPA another year of life beyond June 30.

Meanwhile, the house agriculture committee by unanimous vote instructed its chairman, Rep. Flannagan (D-Va.), to offer an amendment to the OPA bill eliminating all meat subsidies and requiring an equivalent increase in price ceilings.

Meat subsidies now amount to about $750,000,000 a year. Packers have been critical of the subsidies and have blamed OPA regulations for meat shortages and blackmarket operations. Thus the legislation to continue OPA another year will come before the house for debate Monday, teeming with explosive issues on meat and many other foods, fibers and industrial products.

SUDDEN DEATH OF EXECUTIVE IS RECALLED

Shortly After Two P. M. Year Ago Today Pres. Roosevelt Was Stricken At Warm Springs

FLASH RINGS WORLD

By F. HAROLD OLIVER

Washington, April 12.—(P)—Shortly after 2 p. m. a year ago today Franklin D. Roosevelt raised a hand to the back of his head and grimaced:

"I have terrific headache."

They were the last words spoken by the only four-term president.

He died two and a half hours later in a simply-furnished bedroom of his mountain cottage at Warm Springs, Ga.

As one of three reporters in Warm Springs when death suddenly overtook the 31st president, I was stunned by its unexpectedness, like almost everyone else.

We were aware that Mr. Roosevelt was not a well man—that he was given to much sleeping, that he was not gaining weight as his doctors wanted him to do while resting in his "second home" in the south.

But when we were summoned from a barbecue, to which the president had been invited but never attended, and heard the tragic news from the lips of Secretary William D. Hassett, it was one of the greatest shocks of our lives. The doctors said they were shocked, too.

Death came at 4:35 p. m. Washington time. We were called from our picnic shortly before 6.

"It is my sad duty," Hassett said in the presence of tearful associates, "to announce the president died at 3:35 p. m. (central time) of a cerebral hemorrhage." Dr. Howard Bruen, naval commander in attendance at the time, later changed this to "massive cerebral hemorrhage."

We rushed to telephones in the Hassett cottage and put in calls to our Washington offices. Before they could be put through, the White House had flashed a brief announcement of the death to news offices.

We filled in the details as the constitutional succession routine was carried out, the bereaved family was notified, and the world still at war but sensing the end for which the war president had fought so untiringly—paid homage to a national and world leader.

Mrs. Roosevelt, standing the ordeal like a soldier, flew to Warm (Turn to Page Five)

Much Damage Is Reported From Frosts

Chambersburg, April 12.—(P)—Severe damage to fruit crops in the Adams-Franklin county orchard region was reported by agricultural experts and orchardists today, in the wake of a sudden, killing frost.

A dip to below freezing temperatures wiped out the peach crop completely in some sections, and cut it by 25 to 50 per cent in others, reported Charles P. Fague, assistant Franklin county farm agent, and L. O. Weaver, plant pathologist of the Pennsylvania State College.

Nearly all of the center buds—the best fruit-producers—in the clusters of five on apple trees were killed, they found after a tour of Franklin county.

All sour cherry blossoms were killed in one section of the county, they added.

Unable to translate the damage into terms of dollars or bushels, they estimated, however, that it was as severe as that of last May, which cut Franklin county's fruit crop below 50 per cent of normal.

Adams county orchardists reported extensive damage, particularly to sweet cherries.

BUSINESS ACTIVITY IN DISTRICT DROPS

Pittsburgh, April 12.—(P)—Business activity dropped nearly 44 points in the Pittsburgh district during the first week of the coal strike, the University of Pittsburgh said today.

The bureau's index, based on the 1935-39, average, fell from a record peak of 188.5 for the week ended March 30 to 144.8 last week. The number of blast furnaces operating dropped from 41 to 27.

Department store sales for the four weeks ended April 6 were 27 percent above those for the same period last year.

Pres. Truman Delivers Brief Acceptance Address From Famous Hyde Park Porch

By ALLAN FISHER

Hyde Park, N. Y., April 12.—(P)—United Nations leaders join President Truman today in dedicating as a national shrine the green acres and the old Hudson river mansion of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who died one year ago today.

The ceremonies, from 2:30 to 3:00 p. m., include: An eight-minute dedicatory address by Mr. Truman from the front porch where the late president customarily greeted his neighbors on victorious election nights.

Formal presentation by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt to Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug of the house, the century-old rose garden in which her husband is buried, and the surrounding 33 acres of land, comprising an estate which has been in the Roosevelt family since 1867.

Chairs were placed on the wide expanse of lawn before the house for 700 special guests, including members of the United Nations Security Council.

Members of the cabinet, the supreme court and congress, were invited to represent official Washington.

The scene of the ceremonies gave the impression of an open air theatre. Standing space was provided the public behind the seating section and among the trees of the park which extends for some distance before the house.

The department of interior said the radio hookup for broadcasting the ceremonies was the greatest since V-J Day.

President Truman was expected to remain here not more than an hour. Leaving Washington by plane about noon for Stewart Field, on the U. S. military academy reservation, he planned to motor to the Roosevelt estate and return to the capital in time for supper.

The program called for an invocation by the Rev. Dr. George W. W. Anthony, Rector of St. James Episcopal church in Hyde Park, of which Mr. Roosevelt was a life-long member, benediction by Rabbi Jerome Unger, of nearby Poughkeepsie and singing of the Star Spangled Banner by Marian Anderson.

Five months of work by department of the interior specialists have restored the interior of the house in accordance with photographs taken in 1940.

Mr. Roosevelt deeded the house and 23-acres to the government, and congress accepted it as an historic site by an act passed July 18, 1939. Last November Mrs. Roosevelt, her four sons and one daughter, waived their lifetime claims to the estate.

"We have tried to make the house look as if President Roosevelt might be coming back for a weekend," George A. Palmer, superintendent of the estate for the department of the interior, said.

Up until yesterday all recent reports represented Forrestal as intending to remain in office until about July 1, the beginning of the new government fiscal year.

The presidential viceroy on merger opposition came when he was asked about the far-reaching unification bill recommended by a senate military subcommittee after months of preparation.

Mr. Truman said he had read the (Turn to Page Thirteen)

Policy Piloted Steadfastly To Left As The New Year Starts

By JACK BELL

AP Political Reporter

Washington, April 12.—(P)—President Truman piloted Democratic political policy steadfastly left of center today as he began his second year in the White House.

With a statement that he stands solidly behind the federal legislation to abolish state poll taxes and to establish a permanent fair employment practice commission, the president emphasized he is not veering from the broad objectives laid down by his predecessor.

At the same time, Mr. Truman scotched any thought of some southern members of the party that he might be asking political peace with them.

There were indications, too, that the chief executive would fortify this position by reiterating his desire for passage of what he has classed as progressive legislation when he speaks later in the day at the Hyde Park grave of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mr. Truman reaffirmed support of anti-poll tax and FEPC measures "and all similar legislation," came at a crowded White House news conference yesterday.

As expected, it provoked mixed reaction among Capitol Hill Democrats. Some privately read into it White House support for an announced CIO campaign to purge southern members of congress who fight such measures.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla.), promised a new effort to bring the anti-poll tax measure before the

Pittsburgh Dispute Carried To Court

Harrisburg, April 12.—(P)—Attorney General James H. Duff filed suit in the Dauphin county court today to collect $88,319, together with interest, from Register of Wills John M. Huston of Allegheny county.

The money, the commonwealth claimed, is due in excess fees for the collection of inheritance and estate taxes by Huston for the state since 1937.

Duff also filed a second action, asking the court to compel Huston to produce all books and records relating to the funds, invoking the powers of Auditor General G. Harold Wagner under a 1929 law already attacked by Huston.

President Judge William M. Hargest immediately issued an order requiring Huston to show why he should not produce the records, and gave him 15 days to answer.

Plane Flight Starts In a Drizzling Rain

Washington, April 12.—(P)—President Truman left here by plane in a slight drizzle today for Hyde Park, N. Y., to lead the nation's observance of the anniversary of Franklin D. Roosevelt's death.

The presidential plane, the "Sacred Cow," took off at 11:32 a. m., EST, 17 minutes later than originally scheduled.

The president was due to land at the West Point, N. Y., airport. From there he planned to drive to Hyde Park, to dedicate the home of the late President Roosevelt as a national shrine.

He have restored the interior of the house in accordance with photographs taken in 1940.

Refiners Denounce OPA Price Ceilings

Tulsa, Okla., April 12.—(P)—OPA price ceilings are the cause of an unhealthy condition now existing in oil production and refining, says H. B. Fell, executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

Fell told the spring meeting of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission yesterday that if OPA lessened its control on prices, oil production could be met.

Col. Ernest O. Thompson, member of the Texas Railroad Commission, asserted that price and production controls do not come under the jurisdiction of the interstate oil compact commission. He said the commission, under its charter, can only strive to prevent waste.

Warwick M. Downing, compact member from Colorado, said the group should go on record in favor of a fair price for petroleum products in order that production may be upped.

"I have not changed my position on federal anti-poll tax legislation," the president read in a firm voice. "I am still in favor of federal legislation. I voted for cloture on this issue in the senate and I would do so again if I were a senator."

(Cloture is senate procedure by which debate is limited on a bill and an eventual vote is forced if two-thirds of the senators present agree to invoke the rule.)

Mr. Truman went on to say that he favors state action, holding that there is no contradiction between it and federal action. He mentioned that several states had abandoned such levies in what he called "a step forward."

Every person in Warren is cordially invited, and urged, to participate in one or more of the special services arranged by the Warren County Ministerial Association in observance of Holy Week.

The final noonday period on Thursday will be addressed by Captain Stanley H. Wright, with Salvation Army musicians in charge of special numbers. The topic will be "Silence Before Peter," and Rev. Hans Pearson, Sheffield, will conduct the altar service. "Thy Cross, O Jesus" is the opening hymn and for the closing, "Sweet the Moment."

Trout Season Opens Monday With Conditions Near Perfect

Next Monday the fellows who have been waiting all winter and who during the past few days have been oiling reels, shellacking rods and getting lines and equipment ready will take to the wilds. Reports are that the streams are just a wee bit low at the present time but showers are anticipated over the weekend that may correct that.

As usual the forest service is warning anglers to be careful in their use of fire in the woods. Care must be exercised in the emptying of pipes, the tossing away of lighted matches and cigarettes as the woods are dry and fear is felt that forest fires will sweep large areas. During the past few weeks the streams have been stocked by fish from both the state and Federal hatcheries and 60,000 fingerlings have been placed in streams where legal fish were not planted. It is hoped to give the little fellows a chance to grow. Forty thousand legal sized fish have also been placed in county streams and promise has been secured from the hatcheries that additional fish will be placed during the season.

The stocking program this year was carried out under the direction of the Warren County Field and Stream Club members and the list of streams stocked is as follows:

Brook Trout
Hemlock—800.
Four Mile Run—1050.
Farnsworth—950.
Six Mile Run—350.
Maguire Run—50.
Lamb Run—450.
Wilson—450.
Coffee Creek—1200.
Pheips—450.
Blue Eye—700.
Pine Creek—1800.

Little Brokenstraw—1900.
Whitney Run—450.
Tidioute Creek—1050.
Arcade Branch—600.
McGee Run—600.
Ben George—450.

Brown Trout
Spring Creek—2000.
Caldwell Creek—1400.
West Hickory Creek—2400.
East Hickory Creek—950.
East Branch Tionesta—1800.
East Branch Spring Creek—3400.
So. Branch Tionesta—1400.
Brokenstraw Creek—3000.
West Branch Tionesta—1200.
West Branch Caldwell Creek—1400.
Minister—700.

In addition to the above fish received from the State Hatcheries the following streams were stocked from the Federal Hatchery:
South Branch—4000 brown trout.
East Branch—2000 brook trout.
Farnsworth—3000 rainbow and 1000 brookies.
Four Mile—3000 brown trout.

During the past fall many pan fish have been placed in county streams where the water is warmer and suitable for the raising of the pan fish. Thousands of calico bass, sunnies, blue gills and other fish have been placed in the streams and an extensive pan fish campaign will be waged next fall with additional thousands of fish placed. In some streams bull heads 12 to 14 inches in size were planted.

Moose Bowlers Enjoyed Fine Banquet and Entertainment

Members of the Moose Bowling League and their friends enjoyed a banquet and evening of good entertainment last evening at the Marconi Outing Club which had been taken over for the occasion. The tables for the affair had been well arranged and presented a beautiful appearance with snowy clothes and settings. Covers were laid for over 200 and the menu of stuffed pork chops and other foods was well prepared and served.

Following the dinner William Olson presided as toastmaster in a capable manner. Awards were made to the several men from various teams who had rolled high scores and otherwise distinguished themselves on the hardwood during the season.

Two floor shows were given with six acts on each show and the booking of the show drew forth many kind remarks as perhaps there never has been such a well balanced show given in any club in Warren. The acts were diversified in character and drew forth much applause.

Many stories of the past season were told and retold by the bowlers in the social hours enjoyed and the affair will go down as one of the most enjoyable affairs of the kind ever held by members of this league.

Outing Club Floor Show Is All-Star Bill

"This is one time where I am absolutely sure that we have a great bill for the weekend floor show at the Marconi Outing Club", said Frank Williams this morning. "For the weekend we held over the three choice acts that were presented to the Moose Bowlers at their banquet last evening. Perhaps Warren never had such a fine floor show as that of last evening and we simply kept the three outstanding acts".

The bill is headed by the Alaska Sisters who present a beautifully costumed dancing act. It is a rare combination of acrobatic and adagio work and holds the crowd as no other act at the Club has ever done. The Alaska Sisters must be seen to be appreciated. Parry O'Day a petite and youthful singer is another good act that will charm the crowd and Jay Watson the emcee is a fine entertainer. He is a clever phonomimic and his work had the crowd in stitches Thursday evening.

All in all the show is well balanced and diversified and should provide the crowd with fine entertainment.

Passion Flower Is Easter Symbol

Because early Spanish missionaries to South America had trouble making ignorant savages understand the lessons of Holy Writ, the beautiful Passion Flower became a religious symbol, particularly associated with Easter, and has remained so for over 400 years. The holy fathers saw in the flower the symbolic story of the Crucifixion. Its majestic purple was the color always associated with the Passion of Christ. The anthers symbolized the Wounds, the styles the Nails and the stigma the Hammer. Encircling these was the blue Crown of Thorns. There were always 10 petals—never 11 or nine—which to the missionaries represented the Apostles, significantly omitting Judas, who betrayed Christ and Peter, who denied Him. Symbolic elements of the Passion Flower are well displayed in the photo above, taken in Nassau, Bahamas, where it blooms in gardens and grows wild in the inland pine forests.

Navigation On River Shows Heavy Decline

Pittsburgh, April 12—There has been a steady decline in the movement of commodities on the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers in recent months, according to figures compiled by the United States Army engineers here. The loss in tonnage was exceptionally noticeable during February. The total tonnage moved on the Monongahela river was 1,733,886, a decline of 653,311 tons from the previous month. On the Allegheny river, the total amount moved was 123,373 tons, which was 75,640 tons less than in January.

The amount of coal moved on the Monongahela river during February was 531,028 tons, which was 549,231 tons less than in January. Other commodities moved, in tons, were: coke, 18,930; oil and gasoline, 31,480; iron and steel, 18,273; sand and gravel, 69,469; miscellaneous, 14,708. Total, 1,733,886 tons.

On the Allegheny river the drop in tonnage was more noticeable. There were 82,770 tons of coal moved, a drop of 23,569 tons. The other commodities moved in tons were: Coke, 4,683; oil and gasoline, 1,471; sand and gravel, 27,747; miscellaneous, 702; total 123,373 tons.

DARK POWER

BY ELISABETH HOLDING

Chapter 27

SHE was free to move about now; to call for help if she wished, she was left quite undisturbed to make what plans she could for her escape.

And she could make none. It occurred to her to knock on the wall of Uncle Rufus's room, but she decided against it. It would either frighten the old man still more, or wake in him hopes that she saw no way to realize. Or perhaps he could no longer hear anything . . .

She would have done anything possible to help him, but she could think of nothing. There had been, in that talk with her aunt, something that robbed her of the last hope. Her death had been arranged in so cool and matter-of-fact a way; she herself was so utterly negligible; there was nothing in her aunt to which she could appeal.

If this were to be her last hour, she meant it to be a good one, undaunted by fear and weakness. She faced her danger with courage and dignity. She thought of all the happy moments she had had, of all the people who had been kind to her, with a regret that was almost impersonal. It seemed to her that the past was already immeasurably remote. She thought, above all, of Fennel.

She rose, and crossed the room to the open window. Here, on this very spot, her mother had last stood . . . Out there—

An awful fear choked her; her heart seemed to stop. For there, at the foot of the dark pines, lay a white figure.

"Mother!" she said, inaudibly. Her mother had come back, to show her the way. One instant, and she could lie there too—

"MISS LEONARD!" said a voice behind her.

She turned, to see a figure standing there in the dark. Another ghost . . . She opened her mouth to scream, but no sound came.

"Steady!" said the voice. "Steady, dear girl!"

His arm was about her shoulders, and she clutched his coat frantically.

"How can you come?" she whispered. "You were dead, too."

"Never was less so," he answered. "But come now. Let's get away."

"How—could you come?" "I found the kitchen door open, and I saw the back stairs, and came up them. I didn't know where you'd be, or whether I'd be—welcome. But I saw this door locked, with the key outside. Didn't want to knock, you see, so I walked in."

"He said—he killed you?" "His mistake, whoever he was. I was knocked out for a while. Then I found myself lying in a quarry, and I got up and came out. I went to a doctor—but he only told him I'd been in an accident. I haven't told the police or anyone. I wanted to see you first. I'd have come before, but—I was a little—bothered by that wack I got. Now let's clear out."

"No! We can't leave Uncle Rufus without—"

"Uncle Rufus!" he repeated. "But look here! You needn't worry about him."

"I do! You don't know—" "I know one thing," he said. "The poor fellow was dead when we carried him in—"

"No! He's—there—in the next room . . ."

"He's dead," said Fennel. "I'm sorry if I'm—blunt, but—there's something going on here. When we carried the poor fellow in, I saw that he was dead. But your aunt behaved as if he were alive. That's why I wanted to see you that evening. I wanted to tell you, and get you out of the way before the big break. Now it's too late. . . . Are you mixed up in it?"

"Not that I know. I did do one thing. I made a will. You see, Uncle Rufus had left his money to me, and I made a will leaving half of it to Aunt Emma."

"How did she work that?" "I hesitated a moment. I wanted to find out what had happened to you. We made a bargain—"

"I see!" he said, and was silent for a moment. Then he took his arm from about her shoulders and moved away a little.

Everything he did was right, every action, every word of his was perfectly clear to her; she knew how he felt about things; she knew that he understood her. His quiet acceptance of the situation had steadied her, made her feel resolute and safe.

"The trouble is," he said, "that there are three men here, and my wrist's broken—"

"We'll have to manage carefully. Somehow we ought to get a look at the man in the next room. I want you to be able to swear that he's not your uncle. I'll just take a cautious survey."

He went over to the door, but he did not open it. She came to his side.

"I was a fool!" he said. "When I unlocked the door, I left the key there. And now we're locked in. For a moment they were silent. What about the window?"

"You were looking out when I came in—"

"Oh, it was horrible!" she cried. "I thought I saw something . . . I was nervous . . ."

They went together to the window—and it was still there, that white figure.

"Do you—see it?" she whispered. "Yes," he said.

"I thought—it was my mother. She—died like that. She—fell from this very window . . ."

FENNEL reached for her hand and held it.

"No way to get out of here," he said. "Can you shoot?"

"Shoot?" "I have an automatic, but I can't do much with my left hand."

"I never even saw one, except in the movies," she said. "And I'm afraid—I couldn't shoot anyone—even if I knew how."

"Of course you couldn't," he said. "I was only thinking of shooting the lock, so that we could get out."

"I'll try it."

"I'm afraid it would—"

Something fell past them, something like a great white bird and struck the ground with a terrible thud, and did not move.

And from the next room came a scream.

"My child! You've killed my child . . . Let me go . . . My child . . ."

"It's Wren!" cried Di. "Stand here!" said Fennel. "You can see the white doorknob. Stand close—there. Aim just below the knob. Pull the trigger."

The noise dazed her. And in the next room that wild voice was still shouting; some article of furniture was overturned with a crash.

"Try again!" said Fennel's quiet voice beside her. "Not so high."

Again a stab of flame and the crash of the shot, and the splintering of wood.

"Too low!" said Fennel. "Now! This time you'll do it."

She aimed with desperate care, tried to steady her shaking hand. Her finger was on the trigger, when there came a yell from the next room.

there was a cracking, tearing sound, and Fennel collapsed on the floor.

"What happened?" she cried. "Oh, what's the matter?"

"Stand away from that door!" he shouted.

But she was on her knees beside him. She spoke to him, but he did not answer. All noise had ceased in the next room, all noise everywhere had ceased: there was a silence that seemed to ring in her ears.

"JAMES!" she said.

"Yes!" he answered, in his ordinary, composed voice.

"What's happened to you?" "I got a bullet in the leg," he said. "Through the door."

She was passionately determined to be as quiet, as cool as he; she must not disappoint him.

"What can I do for you?" she asked.

For answer he laid his head back against her shoulder, and she began to stroke his forehead.

Outside the pines stirred in the breeze, and far away a dog barked and a motor horn sounded.

"I must get him to a doctor," she thought.

They were locked in this room. And God knows who or what was in the corridor outside. Even if she could get out, how was she to leave him alone in this horrible house while she went for help? He might be bleeding to death, dying here, now, with his head against her shoulder. No one knew they were here. No one would come.

"James," she said, "can you move?"

"I—can," he answered, "but—I don't care much about moving—just now . . ."

"I'll bring the chair for you to lean against," she said. "I want to look around."

She pushed the chair so that he was propped up against it, and then she stood behind, in the dark, and tried to think. Other people had escaped from situations like this . . .

"If I threw out the mattress," she thought, "and then jumped . . ."

There was a cracking, tearing sound, and Fennel collapsed on the floor.

"What happened?" she cried. "Oh, what's the matter?"

"Stand away from that door!" he shouted.

But she was on her knees beside him. She spoke to him, but he did not answer. All noise had ceased in the next room, all noise everywhere had ceased: there was a silence that seemed to ring in her ears.

ONE YEAR AFTER ROOSEVELT

One year after his death, Franklin D. Roosevelt remains one of the most commanding and controversial figures of the twentieth century. The immediate impact of his personality and ideas is gone, and with it much of the bitter partisan animosity it engendered. Already his goals and accomplishments are beginning to be seen in a saner perspective. But that does not mean that temperate appraisals have replaced adulation and abuse.

Franklin D. Roosevelt still dominates and divides the Democratic Party, and probably will as long as the party remains in power. His aims are officially the aims of his successor, and it seems safe to say that Mr. Truman has found this commitment a source of both strength and of embarrassment.

The minds and temperaments of Roosevelt and Truman are vastly different. Thus the President, while subscribing to the Roosevelt philosophy, cannot put it into action with the Roosevelt technique. Mr. Truman, in his way, is as strongly individualistic as his predecessor was. Because of this, he finds himself accused of leftism by some of his conservative fellow Democrats, and accused by one outspoken labor leader of being "weak and spineless".

How different this last eventful year's history might have been with Mr. Roosevelt in the White House cannot be calculated. Some domestic crises were inevitable, others might have been avoided, and still others might have been created by popular feeling for or against the President himself.

Mr. Roosevelt, who was capable of quickly changing tactics as well as long-range planning, certainly would have shown an outward reaction to these crises quite different from Mr. Truman's handling of the same situations. But whether the final story would have been greatly altered is not so certain.

A more insistent source of speculation is Mr. Roosevelt's possible influence on international affairs and the beginnings of the United Nations. It is clear today that his international prestige is undiminished. His leading part in the conception and foundation of the world organization is everywhere recognized.

Time and distance alone can give us the true picture of Franklin D. Roosevelt against the background of the world in which he lived. But two things seem capable of safe prediction: He will be remembered best as a war President, astute diplomat and world leader, rather than as the author of domestic reforms on which he set so high a store; and he will be remembered long. Historians will surely find, as Mr. Roosevelt's contemporaries did, that it is impossible to ignore so vivid and forceful a personality.

HOLY WEEK IN PEACE TIME

For the first time since 1941, citizens of Warren, in common with those of other communities all over the country, approach the observance of a Holy Week without war. In keeping with its annual custom, the Warren County Ministerial Association has arranged community noonday worship services Monday through Thursday and a three-hour service on Good Friday afternoon.

Noonday services will be held in St. Paul's Lutheran church, on Water street at Second avenue, beginning promptly at 12:10 and ending as promptly at 12:50, so that worshippers may spend some portion of their lunch hour attending the service. Service clubs will provide special contingents on their regular meeting days, Rotary on Monday, Lions and Business and Professional Women on Tuesday, Kiwanis on Wednesday, and Zontians on Thursday.

The three-hour service, 12 to 3:00 p. m., on Good Friday will be held in First Methodist church, the schedule to allow for entry and departure between each meditation on "The Seven Last Words".

LENTE SERMONETTE

INDIFFERENCE

From The Fellowship of Prayer

"For I was an hungry and ye gave me no meat—"
Matthew 25:42. Read Matthew 25:42-47; Lamentations 1:11; Luke 10:30-31.

The final condemnation in this parable is not so much for wrong willfully done, as for indifference and insensitive neglects. Jesus' spiritual vision was never more scathingly revealed, for in the end our indifference have a cumulative and tragic recoil. Trace back to their rootings sufferings unshared, needs unmet, great causes lost for want of support, the tangled growth of bad government, the havoc of battlefields, the eclipse of generous hopes and, lo, there is always indifference. Not enough people cared enough to do anything about it. They simply passed by. Love and goodness, faith and vision are never afraid of opposition; they grow by meeting it, but indifference smother them—they have no weapons against it.

Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — The Army's own investigation of the so-called "military caste" system might well be the source of some of the greatest changes in officer-enlisted man relationship in 160-odd years.

The very hush-hush hearings already are under way. It probably will be mid-May or later before a report is made public.

Secretary of War Patterson's appointment of the investigating board was quite a surprise. Even more surprising was its membership. Headed by Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, all six of the members are reservists. Not one West Point man in the carload.

However, there already are complaints. One is that the board is officer-packed. This is a little ridiculous. All six were at one time enlisted men. Two of the members were discharged as sergeants. They are former T/Sgt. Jake Lindsay, who won the congressional medal of honor in the infantry and now works for the Veterans Administration at Lexington, Mass.; and former Sgt. Merrill Frost, of Hanover, N. H., who was a bombardier in the Air Force and was badly wounded in Italy. He is now a vice president of the Air Forces Association.

THE other four are former officers, but they all came up the traditional hard way—through the ranks. Other than Gen. Doolittle, they are: former paratrooper Capt. Adna H. Underhill, Freeville, N. Y.

now employed by the N. Y. State Conservation Department; Lieut. Col. Robert Neville, formerly with Stars and Stripes in the Mediterranean theater, and one of the chief critics of the caste system; and former Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton, hero of the North African and Sicilian campaigns and now commander general of Louisiana State University.

Arguing that he wanted no possible charge of regular army influence leveled against the board, Gen. Doolittle insisted that the hearings be held at some other place than the Pentagon Building. All of the hearings are "executive" in character, which means that the press is barred. Gen. Doolittle's contention is that better results will be obtained from informal discussions, without putting witnesses on the spot through fear that their testimony will make tomorrow's headlines.

THE committee doesn't plan to concentrate on adverse criticism of the military caste system. Some persons who approve of the present officer-enlisted man relationship will be called. Civilians and Red Cross workers who served with GIs in the field also will be asked to state their views. During the revolution Gen. George Washington called on Baron Von Steuben to give some semblance of organization to the hodge-podge Continental Army. There has been little change since then of that Prussian general's concept of relationship between officers and enlisted men.

America's Card Authority
In winning the Eastern State open pair championship with Harold Harkavy, Ambrose Casner of New York became Life Master No. 53. While "Amby" is not well known around the country, he has long been recognized in New York as a fine player.

The caliber of a player is best demonstrated when he holds poor cards. Most East players would have become discouraged with the cards Casner held in the hand shown; but when West opened the king of spades, Casner decided to do something unusual as his only hope of contributing towards the defeat of the four-heart contract. He played the nine of spades on the first trick, and when West continued with the ace of spades, Casner dropped the deuce. This was a demand for a continuation and generally signifies the ability to ruff the next lead of the suit. Therefore, when West played the five of spades, declarer thought that Casner was now void of spades, and put on dummy's ten-spot. Casner's jack won the trick, and as West still had to get a heart trick, the contract was defeated.

North Warren Inmate Caught In Ohio Town After Escape

Franklin, April 12—Sheriff John E. Cunningham and Deputy Sheriff Ellwood Erwin flew by airplane from the Oil City airport Thursday afternoon to Bryan, O., and returned Thursday evening with a man who escaped from the Warren State hospital in their custody.
The two officers left Oil City at 1 p. m. made the flight of 230 miles to Bryan in a Stinson four-passenger plane owned by Paul Renard and piloted by Lloyd Woodward and returned to the Oil City airport Thursday at 7 p. m.
The man, who escaped from the State Hospital in North Warren last Friday, was taken into custody by Bryan, O., authorities and Sheriff Cunningham was notified yesterday. Sheriff Cunningham has a full business schedule this week, including several trips out of town and decided yesterday he could not afford two days to make the trip of 279 miles by road to Bryan to bring back the prisoner. He therefore decided to make the trip by airplane and arrangements for the flight were quickly made.
It was the first time in the history of Venango county a sheriff had used an airplane in making a trip on official business. The man who escaped from the Warren State Hospital spent Thursday night in the Venango county jail and will be returned to the hospital in North Warren today. He is a resident of the southern section of Venango county.
On the return flight from Bryan on the plane carrying the two Venango county officers and their prisoner stopped at Cleveland for a short time to refuel.

Police Arrest Two Motorists For Disregarding Stop Signals

The campaign of the local police department for the enforcement of safe driving on the part of automobile owners is bringing more and more of the traffic offenders into police court. This week two have been arrested for reckless driving and last night other arrests were made for crashing through stop signals and for driving without due regard for conditions on the highway.
It is expected that warnings will soon be given to pedestrians who indulge in "jay walking". So far this year there have been no fatal accidents to pedestrians and lost year there was only one. While no police force could possibly avert fatal accidents due to pedestrians jay walking a campaign to halt

Know Your Public Health Nurse Week

Tomorrow, April 13, marks the conclusion of the period especially designated as Know Your Public Health Nurse Week. Through these columns, since Monday, an attempt has been made to increase the public's understanding of the public health program and those responsible for carrying it on.
The public health nursing program has been of ever-increasing importance during the past several years of wartime shortages of physicians, when hospital space was limited and the nursing help situation was an acute one. Although doctors and nurses are now being returned to civilian life and activities, it is still important today for every person in Warren county to know the health facilities of his community and to use them to the best advantage. Unfortunately, far too few persons understand the public health nursing service, and how it can help them in both sickness and health.

Returning veterans are creating many new problems; greater stress is being placed on early discovery and treatment of tuberculosis; clinics for both children and adults are being given more consideration; rationing and transportation problems have become another headache for both families and public health authorities; and development of a better health program in the public schools is occupying both authorities and those designated as school nurses. Health authorities of any community will never be satisfied until they have reached the goal of the best possible health for all its people. To reach this goal, there must be concerted effort among all community groups and on the part of every individual to better understand the health facilities now available.

No Damage In Tank Blaze At Seneca Plant

Firemen were called to the Seneca Refinery Thursday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock where the wooden top on a tank of crude oil had caught fire. The cause was not known. Fire crews of the refinery had the blaze under control and only one line was laid by the firemen. The loss was small.

Last evening a grass fire at the head of Hemlock street called out the firemen on a still alarm. Brooms were used to beat down the fire and it was extinguished without endangering any property. This morning shortly before 7 the firemen were called to the home of Russell Davis, 422 Chestnut street where the gas line in a refrigerator had let go allowing flames to escape. The trouble was stopped and there was no damage.

U. S. Players Won't Stick, Says Tinker

By CHRIS MACGILL
Tallahassee, Fla., April 12—(P)—Joe Tinker, of the Chicago Cubs' immortal Tinker to Evers to Chance infield combination, today predicted that none of the American baseball players who have signed with the Mexican League will stick it out south of the border.

"I don't think much of the league and to tell you the truth: I don't think any of the ball players will want to live down there," the stocky, greying former shortstop declared.

"I don't think they'll fit in and they have no assurance that they're going to stay down there. The league might bust up."

Tinker was the first major league player to "jump" to the short-lived outlaw Federal League in 1914, following his sale by Cincinnati to Brooklyn in a winter transaction. When Tinker was refused a part of the purchase price, he signed a Federal contract as playing manager of the new Chicago Whales.

Tinker said the return to this country of Catcher Mickey Owen of the Brooklyn Dodgers would help curb any desire on the part of other major leaguers to make the jump to the Mexican League. "Owen made a mistake," Tinker asserted, commenting that Brooklyn Dodger President Branch Rickey "won't even keep him in the ball club."

Tinker forecast that Mexico would be unable to support a league of the caliber of the National or American leagues of the United States and said he thought the Pasquel enterprise was "just a publicity stunt" to draw attention to Mexico. "I don't believe it'll go very far," he observed, adding that League President Jorge Pasquel's system "is not going to make it go."

"This idea of one man operating five teams in a single league isn't going to work."

Tinker, in Tallahassee to visit his son, Joe Tinker, Jr., is scouting the minors for the Boston Braves.

ADVENTURES IN SPACE: The Story of Radar

No. 9: A Duel of Rockets

BY DAVID DIETZ
 Noted Science Writer; Author of "Atomic Energy in the Coming Era," Etc.
 (Written for NEA Service)

(1) There never will be a split second to lose in the "push-button" war of the future. When an enemy rocket with its atomic bomb load shows up on the giant oscilloscope of a home defense base it must be destroyed at once. It may be traveling several hundred miles away, dozens of miles above the earth, at a speed of several hundred miles a minute. It must be attacked by a rocket with a speed as great if not greater, and airplanes for this purpose will long have been obsolete. Only a few minutes after it shows on the radar oscilloscope in a commandant's quarters it may lay waste hundreds of square miles and kill millions of people.

(2) As soon as the enemy rocket appears on the commandant's oscilloscope, he presses a button. This automatically connects his radar with the enemy rocket appears. Immediately the range and direction of the defense rocket in the emplacement is automatically set. An instant later it is released and is on its way. The commandant's radar controls its direction, as it speeds after the enemy's missile.

(3) In a moment the commandant sees his own rocket traveling toward the enemy's buzz bomb. Both are traveling miles above ground. The enemy rocket is still a safe distance from its intended destination. He sees the two rockets on the face of his radar scope. Then suddenly both disappear. He knows that his own rocket has done its work; it has blown the enemy bomb to atoms. If this rocket had failed the result would have been disastrous.

(4) The battle in the push-button war is over in a few minutes. Momentarily the country has been saved. The commandant with the push of a button has done more than all the defense armies of the past may have accomplished. Outside it is night. The populace could not have heard the approach of the enemy rocket, it was traveling so fast. Neither could it have heard the rush of the defense rocket for the same reason. People are not aware that a battle is taking place until they are startled by an earth-shaking explosion high in the stratosphere and a blinding flash of light.

ADVENTURES IN SPACE: The Story of Radar

No. 10: A Ticket to the Moon

BY DAVID DIETZ
 Noted Science Writer; Author of "Atomic Energy in the Coming Era," Etc.
 (Written for NEA Service)

(1) "ROCKET CRUISE TO THE MOON" . . . "SPEND YOUR VACATION ON MARS" . . . Some day there may be advertisements like those. For radar researchers now are sure to turn their attention to interplanetary rocket flight. No doubt the first attempt will be an effort to reach the moon. As soon as radar contact was made with the moon from Belmar, N. J., on January 10, 1946, rocket enthusiasts began to discuss the possibility of sending a rocket to the moon. Such a rocket would have to leave the earth with a speed greater than 11 miles a second to escape the earth's gravitational pull. Perhaps it will use atomic power.

(2) The flight of such a rocket would be controlled by radar while astronomers follow its path on the oscilloscope tube of the radar equipment. Obviously it would not be possible to see the rocket in a telescope. Space is full of meteors which do not reflect enough sunlight to be visible. Obviously, also, no one would travel in that first rocket for many reasons, including the danger of collision with one of these meteors. Whether passengers might eventually ride in a rocket would depend upon the result of many trials.

(3) It might be decided to let the first rocket crash into the moon. Since this would destroy the rocket, the decision might also be made to load the rocket with phosphorus bombs which would give off a tremendous flash of light at the moment of impact. Such a flash would light up the mountains and craters of the region where the rocket landed and we can imagine astronomers at their big telescopes waiting for this flash of light. Perhaps it would yield new facts about the moon.

(4) At the world's largest observatories—the Mt. Palomar Observatory with its 200-inch telescope, and Mt. Wilson with its 100-inch telescope—the explosion of the rocket would be photographed. It must be remembered that such telescopes give a view of the moon equivalent to what would be obtained with the unaided eye if the moon were less than 50 miles away. The long shadows cast by the bomb explosion would light up mountain peaks and craters from new angles and perhaps give astronomers information of the utmost value about their structure.
